All 50 states and the District of Columbia require licensure or certification for PTAs. The licensure process protects the public ensuring that only those candidates who have graduated from an accredited program and have demonstrated a basic entry-level competency on the national license exam are permitted to treat the public. An active license or certificate is required for each state in which the PTA practices. The license must be renewed on an ongoing basis with most states requiring continuing education for renewal. The PTA must follow scope of work and supervision requirements outlined in each state's physical therapy practice act. Note: A felony conviction may affect a graduate's ability to sit for the licensing exam.

The program has determined that its curriculum meets the state educational requirements for licensure or certification in all states, the District of Colombia, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands secondary to its accreditation by the Commission on Accreditation in Physical Therapy Education, based on the following: CAPTE accreditation of a physical therapist or physical therapist assistant program satisfies state educational requirements in all states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands. Thus, students graduating from CAPTE-accredited physical therapist and physical therapist assistant education programs are eligible to take the National Physical Therapy Examination and apply for licensure in all states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the U.S. Virgin Islands.
